RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

There were 6 feet 4 inches water in the canal last evening by the mark. The river was still falling. For New Orleans .- The Pacific will leave for New Orleans this evening. She is unquestionably one of the most splendid boats now afloat. Her accommodations and fare are unexceptionable. Capt. Jesse K. Bell, who is known to all our citizens as a hightoned gentleman and excellent officers, has command of the Pacific. Mr. W. P. Halliday, formerly the popular clerk of the Highflyer, is in the office.

The fine steamer Fanny Bullitt also leaves for New Orleans this evening. She is a capital boat, and a better officer than Capt. Dunham cannot be found on the river. Messrs. Judge, the clerks, are attentive and polite to all who travel with them. The Southerner.-This elegant steamer arrived from Memphis last night, and we were favored by her attentive clerks with late papers, &c. Mr. Mc-Michael also brought us a full account of the burning of the Col. Crossman, but as we had one in type from the St. Louis Republican, we did not deem it necessary to publish it.

The Southerner will leave for Memphis this evening, where she will connect with the steamer Belfast for New Orleans. She will take through passengers to New Orleans for $25 and to Vicksburg for $18. The S. is an elegant boat, and Capt. Triplett and Mr. Archer are gentlemen with whom it is pleasure to travel.

The Superior is the mailboat for Cincinnati to-day and Emma Dean is the Carrollton packet.

Negotiations were concluded yesterday the owners of the steamers Scioto No. 2 and W. A. Eaves to exchange boats. On the return of the Eaves, the Scioto will take her place.

BURGLARY.-The mattrass and furnishing store of J. A. Dickerson was entered burglariously between 8 and 9 o'clock last night and ransacked throughout. The burglar tried to open the iron safe with a key, but broke the key off. The entrance was effected through the cellar, the door of which was not locked, and by piling up boxes the burglar succeeded in getting into the house through a trap door. The gentleman who sleeps in the store came in about 9 o'clock, and found that the bird had

The New York Times having intimated that Parton, the author of the Life of Burr that is making such a flurry in the literary world just at present, had "a theory" as to Burr's influence over Jackson, which he would probably bring out in his forthcoming Life of Old Hickory, Parton replies that he has but one theory in writing history, which is, "first, to find out the truth, and, secondly, to tell it." Parton is a rising man.

HIGH WATER IN ALABAMA .- Under the influence of the recent heavy rains the creeks and rivers of Alabama have reached a height not known for many years The upper Alabama on the 19th was forty-five feet above low-water mark, and much damage has been done to the bottom crops of the Cahawba. The tressel-work of the Cahawba and Columbus have likewise suffered considerably.

Mr. Seward, in his speech in favor of the Army bill the other day, boasted that ten years from now no one, with the records of all he had said in Congress and elsewhere before him, could say to which party he belonged. There are a good many worse men than Mr. Seward who could make this boast, if they would.

Three rich farmers of Western Massachusetts have been victimized by a man peddling compost manure. They gave their signatures in favor of the manure, and the rascals wrote money orders over them.—Exchange.

We advise these "three rich farmers of Massa chusetts" to spread a suitable compost over their brains. It would be a capital speculation.

FIRE AT EVANSVILLE .- On Friday morning last the extensive starch manufactory of Messrs. Lagro & Sterrett was totally destroyed by fire. The building was entirely new and of brick, the establishment having been in operation but a few weeks. Loss about $10,000 or $12,000; insurance $8,009.

PERRUARY.

THE EFFECTS OF THE REVULSION .- The returns from the New York city postoffice for the quarter ending Dec. 31, show a decrease in the amount of postage prepaid by postage stamps in mails sent from that office of $10,000, and a decrease in the amount received for stamps and stamped envelops sold of $16,000 as compared with the quarter immediately preceding.

Hoops. - Everything has it advantages, even ladies' hoops. A lady passenger on the Col. Crossman, which was burned in the Mississippi a few nights ago, was saved by the hoops, which kept her affoat until she was rescued. The lady in question, and also a gentleman, who were passengers on the Crossman, came up on the Pacific yesterday.

FLETCHER HARPER, Esq.—This honored member of the world-renowned firm of Harper & Brothers passed through our city last week en route from New Orleans to New York. Mr. H. visited the tropical border of our Union in quest of health, which, we are happy to hear, he found in very liberal measure.

[From this morning's Journal.] XXXVTH CONGRESS-FIRST SESSION. Monday's Proceedings-Concluded.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. Senate.-Mr. Seward reviewed at length the mes sage, saying he was opposed to the attempt to force slavery on the people of Kansas, and he would agi-tate it so long as a single hope remained that slave-ry might be driven from the Territory, which was tolen and robbed of freedom.

Messrs. Clay and Benjamin briefly attacked Mr.

Fessenden's position.

Mr. Davis accused him of uttering disunion sentiments.

Mr. Fessenden did not recognize the authority of Mr. Davis to lecture him, and denied that he had attacked slavery in States where it was established or advanced disunion sentiments; and remarked that he had read an extract from Mr. Davis's speech in which the latter entered President Pierce's Cabinet a disunion man.

in which the latter entered President Pierce's Cabinet a disunion man.

Mr. Davis replied that it was false, and that the extract from his speech was perverted, and explained that he had said that Mr. Fessenden's course would have the effect to undermine the constitution.

Mr. Wilson's proposition to send for persons and papers for the purpose of examining into all the facts relative to the adoption of the Lecompton constitution was rejected by a majority of six.

The Kansas message was then referred to the Committee on Territories.

Pending the effort of Mr. Douglas to get up his resoluion calling for information of the President in reference to Kansas affairs, adjourned.

Mr. Hughes's resolution, merely to refer the Kansas message to a select committee of thirteen, as amended by the adoption of Mr. Harris's substitute given above, was agreed to by 115 against 111.

Mr. Keitt rose to a personal explanation, saying that the House would remember that its proceedings during the session of Friday were broken in an unleasant manner. It was due that he should assume to himself all the responsibility for the violation of its order, dignity, and decorum. He was the aggressor and whatever of responsibility properly attached to that act belonged to him alone. It was also due to justice that he should make whatever reparation it was in his power to make to the dignity and decorum of the House thus violated. He did this in expression of his profound regret at the occurrence. Personal collisions are always unpleasant and very seldom justifiable—never in a legislative body. He felt the full force of the responsibility which he assumed in saying that he was the aggressor, and that the entire responsibility properly belonged to him. In this connection he had but one other remark to make, and that was whether any blow was directed at him or not was more than he could say; at least he was unconscious of having recived it. With this explanation he narted with could say; at least he was unconscious of having re-ceived it. With this explanation he parted with

Mr. Grow said he had been taught in childhood that all fights among men are disgraceful to human nature and to a Christian community, and this is especially the case when they occur among law-makers in the midst of deliberations. Riper years and the force of education satisfied him that this lesson was a good and true one. Yet the right of self-defence he recognized as one of the inalienable rights of man, to be exercised on all occasions and under all circumstances whenever necesary for the protection of life or property. He at the last sitting the House found himself unexpectedly entangled in the first personal conflict. For this he tendered to the House most cheerfully whatever apology was due for this violation of its order and decommend and pro-Mr. Grow said he had been taught in childhood for this violation of its order and decorum, and one regretted more than himself the occasion for the violation of its order.

The House adjourned.

The anti-Lecompton Democrats held a meeting at National Hall this evening. Much crowded. Jno. W. Forney presided. Resolutions were adopted, the most important of which are as follows:

Resolved, That the Democratic party of Pennsylvania in the late presidential contest pledged its faith to the people of the State and country that the citizens of Kansas and all other Territories of the Union should decide for themselves the character of their domestic institution, and as this sacred pledge had the written sanction and ardent approbation of Mr. Buchanan, and was repeatedly reite-rated in our State and city by Secretaries Cobb and Floyd, Postmaster General Brown and others during Floyd, Postmaster General Brown and others during that remarkable campaign; it would be both unmanly and disgraceful in us as Democrats to violate a promise so sacredly given, on the indefeasible ground of expediency alone.

Resolved, That we cling with unabated zeal to the confidence we have so long reposed in James Buchanan, President of the United States, and that we approve and support every part of his policy thus far developed, excepting that in reference to Kansas, from which we do respectfully but fixedly dissent.

Resolved, That the Democratic party of this great city has always been distinguished for its devotion to the rights of States, including those of the South, and that in contending for the great principle embodied in the Kansas-Nebraska act, and for the fulfilment of our pledge in 1856, we claim to be sup-porting the true interests of the South, and as taking the only course that is consistent with our obliga-tions as members of the national Democratic party.

Mr. Forney made a brilliant speech on taking the Mr. Stanton delivered a long and eloquent speech. Walker was not present, being unable to reach the city in time.

AFFAIRS AT FRANKFORT.

[Special Correspondence of the Louisville Journal.] The Bank Question—Resignation of Mr. Welbourne—Evening Sessions of the Senate—Mr. Read's Card—The Bull to prevent the Marriage of Cousins—Col. Rand and his Clatm—Hon. Thos. F. Marshall's Lectures—Religious Matters—The Governor's Levee, &c. &c. FRANKFORT, Feb. 8, 1858.

Frankfort, Feb. 8, 1858.

I scarcely know how to write you to-day, as I have scarcely a particle of news to communicate. The Senate was engaged all morning in the consideration of bills strictly of a local character, and which would prove of no interest whatever to the general reader; and the house was occupied almost exclusively in the discussion of the bank question. And, by the way, if we are to judge from the start made this morning, they will be occupied for several days in the discussion of the same interesting topic, as about the same character and the same number of amendments are proposed as were proposed in the Senate, and as there is a much larger quantity of buncombe and gas to be expended than the Senate had on hand. Judging from the length of time already consumed, we may well question whether there is time, in the remaining eight days, for a full discussion. The number of conductors for the gas doesn't facilitate the thing at all, as each one is fully charged and only one can operate at a time.

Mr. W. J. N. Welbourre, the Assistant Clerk of the House, about whom the Locofocos have raised such a fuss generally, to-day received intelligence of the sickness of his family, which information caused him this morning to tender his resignation, in order that he might hurry home. His resignation was accepted, and the House by a manimous vote tendered their thanks for the faithful, impartial, and able manner in which he had discharged his official duties: thereby giving a just rebuke to the Locofoco ered their thanks for the rathful, impartial, and able manner in which he had discharged his official duties; thereby giving a just rebuke to the Locofoco scribblers who had proclaimed his incompetency, and to the Locofoco press which had endorsed the proclamation and heralded it through the land. I am sure Mr. W. bears with him the best wishes of all the members with whom he has been so intimate-all the members with whom he has been so intimately associated for the past two months.

The House this afternoon passed the Senate bill amending chapter 42 of the Revised Statutes, allowing the keeping of billard tables by private families, and which are not used for pecuniary profit, either directly or indirectly, without the payment of any license. Also a Senate bill giving authority to Justices of the Peace to take depositions in certain cases, by the consent of the parties or their attorneys in writing. I gave you the provisions of the bill in cases, by the consent of the parties or their attorneys in writing. I gave you the provisions of the bill in full a few days ago, and it is useless to repeat them. A bill providing that judges of elections shall be chosen, one in each precinct, from each political party. Mr. Burns proposed that the counties of Floyd and Johnson be exempted, that gentleman stating that there were not enough Americans in his God-forsaken county to fill the positions, was up for consideration. Mr. Jackson suggested that in all probability there would be enough by the next election, and, if not, they could put in some man who tion, and, if not, they could put in some man who had once been a Whig, which would enable the gentleman from Floyd (Mr. Burns) to come in. Mr. Burns inally offered an amendment to the effect, provided there should be a sufficiency of members of the seperate parties in each district. The bill and amendment they passed provided there should be a sufficiency of members of the seperate parties in each district. The bill and amendment then passed.

The Senate seems to be waking up to the importance of more active legislation as the time of adjournment approaches. They have concluded to hold afternoon sessions commencing to-day, and in consequence of which determination they took a recess at 1 o'clock to meet again at 3 this afternoon. As they did but little this morning of any importance, the probability is they design letting themselves in freely this afternoon, and if anything of interest transpires I will write you again to-night.

The Commonwealth of this morning contains the card of W. B. Read, the Senator from Larue, attempting to explain his bold declaration made on the floor of the Senate the other day, to the effect that there was more ignorance among the ministers of the Gospel than among all the other professions. His explanation is if anything worse than the offense, for he not only lets down pretty heavy on the servants of God, but he attempts to mitigate the affair by pouring out a portion of his anathemas upon the heads of that useful class of people who teach the "young idea how to shoot," as well as upon the school commissioners throughout the length and breadth of the State. Verily the card of Mr. and breadth of the State. Verily the card of Mr. Read does not read well, and it would be well for fort.

Read if it were not generally read.

Those persons who are nearly related by the ties of consanguinity, and who have been comtemplating vinculo matrimone; can quiet their fears, if the action of the House a week or two ago, excited any, as the Senate in its wisdom to day concluded that cousins were not to be cozened out of their rights, provided Dad and Mam gave their consent, or in the event of a failure to procure such consent, if any Gretna Green was sufficiently convenient to be reached before the enraged "parients" could overtake the disolation of freeing. Still your correspondent foodly. Green was sufficiently convenient to be reached be-fore the enraged "parients" could overtake the diso-bedient offspring. Still your correspondent fondly hopes that no one will be compelled to disobey the mandates of any pater familias, and foolishly donate to some old water-dog a "silver pound to row him o'er the ferry," for he feels the full force of the poet's touching line. "How sharper than a serpent's thanks it is to have a toothless child, and would not have the feelings of any one lacerated.

Mr. William S. Rand, our late commissioner to the world's fair, held in New York in 1855, and who represented the interest of our State there at that time at an expense to himself, as he alleges, of eighteen months' time and some five thousand dollars in cool cash, in promoting the interest and maintaining the name and fame of the Commonwealth before the assembled nations of the world, is out in a card in the morning papers slightly bearing down upon the Legislature for its refusal to indemnify him for his time and funds expended, as other States have done, but expressing unbonnded confidence in the sense of justice possessed by the citizens of his native Kentucky, and an abiding belief that he is yet to get his dues. Possibly he may; but when Democracy pays any more than is actually stipulated in the bond, it will cease to be Democracy; and when it agrees to receive any less than the bond calls for, Shylocks will cease to exist.

Hon. Thomas F. Marshall has just concluded a series of lectures upon history, but without getting through with the subject, his engagements calling him elsewhere. The Governor holds his last levee of the season this evening, and I suppose the Executive Mansion will be overflowing with the beauty and chivalry of the land, all anxious to pay their parting respects to his Excellency and his accomplished family, who have furnished them with so many delightful entertainments during the winter, and by whom they have been so hospitably, so agreeably, and so elegantly entertained.

EXPLOSION OF THE COL. CROSMAN.

Full Particulars of the Explosion, Burning, and Total

Loss of the Steamer Col. Crosman—Twenty Lives

Lost—$100,000 worth of Property Destroyed.

The "Col. Crosman," late in the Missouri river trade, was, at the time of the lamentable occurrence, making her first trip from New Orleans to St. Louis.

She left the former port on the evening of Thursday, the 26th of January, and had passed on the evening of the 4th inst., New Madrid, which she reached about seven o'clock. Half-past seven found her about a mile above that point, and then it was that the accident happened. She burst her small or that the accident happened. She burst her small or nigger boiler.

The violence of the explosion was such as to carry away the fore part of the cabin, instantly killing Alexander Martin of this city, who was officiating as barkeeper, severely wounding Ephraim L. Cheever, of the firm Warne, Cheever, and Co., Capt. Converse of this city, Kirk Mense of Louisiana, and injuring some others, whose names are not mentioned in this connection—some being blown overhoard.

No sooner had this direful mishap occurred than it was discovered that the boat had caught fire. The alarm became general, the excitement became intense, and the confusion fearful.

Capt. Cheever used his utmost endeavors to keep the passengers from precipitating themselves into the river and with difficulty it would seem that amidst this horrible scene, with the boat all in flames, the water rolling by, he managed to keep from this almost sure death, such as coolness could command in the hour of peril. He then ordered the yawl to be lowered, which being done, the firemen and deck hands took possession of her, filling her to her utmost capacity. No entreaty—no command—no threat of the commanding officers, the captain and the mate—could induce them to venture their lives by swimming or by other means, that they might save unharmed the passengers, who by this time were becoming desperate, as they seemed to find certain death by fire or flood staring them in the face.

Discovering the impossibility of securing the sefer to find certain death by fire or flood staring them in the face.

Discovering the impossibility of securing the safe conduct of his living charges by means of the yawl, already on the water, to the shore, the captain ordered out the other boat. Into this the captain, Mr. Bixby, the pilot, Mr. Lowe, the mate, and Mr. Scott, the steward, handed so many of the passengers as possible. These were carried off to the wharf boat at New Madrid.

The remainder, including the officers of the boat, boat at New Madrid.

The remainder, including the officers of the boat, whom we have mentioned just above, sought safety by plunging into the river. Mr. Hill, of the steamer Herald, who was a passenger, was among them. He was picked up by a skiff sent from shore to the rescue, which did noble service by saving many of the floating beings that studded the surface of the water.

Capt. Cheever was at his post until all had left the boat. Then, and then only, did he cast himself into the river and seek safety by buffeting with the current. He was picked up by another skiff, so far exhausted that in a few minutes life would have become extinct. Carried to New Madrid efforts were successfully made for his resuscitation.

Some of the unfortunate passengers were in the water, the temperature being fifteen degrees below freezing point, for fully half an hour. They lost all they had on board, not having time to save the smallest remnant of their possessions.

The explosion took place while the boat was under way—the nigger boiler having been called into requisition to generate steam to aid in propelling the boat, as we understand—there being an attachment between the nigger and the other boilers. It seems that the shock of the explosion was not very great but caused some inquiry in the ladies' cabin as to what had happened.

When the explosion occurred, the boat was stopped but caused some inquiry in the ladies' cabin as to what had happened.

When the explosion occurred, the boat was stopped in her progress. Fire had been blown into the wood and other inflamable matter on the main deck, and about five minutes afterwards there was a cry of "fire." Then the greatest excitement and alarm commenced. There was a general rush for life-preservers, and some were so wild with terror as to jump overboard without them.

The boat floated down with the current, a burning mass, lighting up the scene of terror and death:

The safe having been lost, in which the books of the boats were deposited, no full list of the passengers could be obtained. The above are taken from the recollection of the survivors, and is thought to Shocking Affar—Hyena in the Woods.—A distressing tragedy occurred this week in the Western part of this State. Gannung's Menagerie is wintering two miles west of Paulding, Paulding county. Among the other animals was a hyena, said to be the largest in the United States. The animal was vary ferocious, and had twice bitten his keeper. Early Wednesday morning last the hyena escaped. Search was instantly made, and later in the morning he was discovered in the grave yard, having dug he was discovered in the grave yard, having dug up and partly devoured two or three dead bodies. Several of the citizens rushed in to take it, when Several of the citizens rushed in to take it, when it turned on its assailants, striking down a German day laborer named Jacob Poffenburg, and crushed the head of the unfortunate man in its jaws, killing him instantly. The brute then made its escape, after tearing the flesh from the right arm and the chest of a lad, who is not expected to recover. The animal succeeded in making good his escape. The citizens are much excited. Parties are scouring the woods, and the menagerie men have been notified by some of the citizens to remove the establishment at once.—Cleveland Herald. once.—Cleveland Herald.

Dissolution of Copartnership. HE partnership heretofore existing between the under signed, under the firm of HAYES, CRAIG, & CO dissolved by mutual consent on the 30th of November [Correspondence of Forney's Press.] WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.

I learn that Mr. Harris, of Illinois, designs modifying his resolution to refer the President's special message on Kansas affairs to a special committee, so that the investigation shall be confined to the fraudulant characters of message on Kansas affairs to a special committee, so that the investigation shall be confined to the fraudulent character of the returns of members of the Lecompton convention, and of the votes cast for the constitution as it has been sent here by Calboun; also to the frauds, palpable and indispurable, of the election returns for State officers. There is no change of the issue as it was made up on the day the message was received.

The manner and the ground upon which Calboun returned a pro-slavery Legislature and other State officers, still remains involved in more or less of mystery. The facts have not come out, yet there is more than the appearance of jugglery, and every consideration of justice demands that there should be a searching investigation into the subject.

Whatever result may grow out of the pending controversy, it is evident that the majority of both houses are for some inquiry.

This will be a great point gained, for with what is already known of the lawless and unparalleled proceedings of Calboun, and with what is fairly inferred to be still waiting exposure from the proof already out, the influence and effect can be none other than against Lecompton.

out, the influence and effect can be none other than against Lecompton.

This man Calhoun, whose name is covered with such infamy in the North, is not, it ought not to be supposed, held up for admiration in the South. While his acts, so far as they affect the adoption of the Lecompton constitution, are, to the greater extent, concurred in; nevertheless, no men feel more deeply and poignantly, or are more mortified at his recent graceless tyranny of procedure, than Southern men. With what they cannot but admit, with all their pro-slavery predilections, and in the position they are compelled to take by their people at home, that their case, in the most favorable light, is an extremely doubtful one, they carry with no heart the heavy weight of injustice with which it is now loaded down.

No wonder then that they evince a disposition for conciliation and compromise; no wonder then that

No wonder then that they evince a disposition for conciliation and compromise; no wonder then that they join hands with moderate Northern men that the country may be relieved from its present embarrassment, and that this Kansas question, which has so long vexd our people, may be removed from the halls of Congress. In whatever shall be done, those who have battled for the right so far will be found insisting to the end that the McGhee and Shamnee and Johnston frauds shall meet with the indignant condemnation of the States and people of the Union, as represented in Congress, and that the will of the majority stifled in Kansas up to this time shall be given full and free expression, and as expressed shall be obeyed.

The caucus of the anti-Lecompton members of Congress agreed last evening upon two things: First that the Lecompton constitution must be thrown overboard and the whole matter referred back to the people; and second that on the adoption of the resolution of Mr. Harris, of Illinois, the members of the special committee shall be elected by the House instead of being appointed by the Speaker, unless the Speaker shall agree to compose the committee with a majority of those who favored the adoption of the resolution.

"Sec. 1. Be the enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, That a corporation is hereby created by the name and style of the Lumbermen and Builders' Planing Mill Company. Said company shall have all the rights, immunities, and powers that may be necessary or fit for the conducting of its business, which shall be to deal in and manufacture lumber and other building materials, in all tts branches, and to build houses; also to work in metals, so far as to manufacture machinery and other things connected with said business, which shall be prosecuted in Louisville. The corporation may sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, and may purchase and hold real estate."

The above is a true copy of the first section of the "Breeden Act," as it ss called. The getters up of this bill are certainly grasping, avaricious fellows. They seem to aim at a monopoly of all building operations, as the reader will see. They want to deal in and manufacture lumber in all its branches. This would enable them to establish lumber yards, and saw mills without number. Manufacturing other building materials in all its branches would enable them to make anything in the building line, even to getting out the rock for the cellars and molding brick.

They are not contented with all this, but want to build houses and work in metals and machinery. This includes the business of a large share of our build houses and work in metals and machinery. This includes the business of a large share of our best mechanics. With five hundred thousand dollars or less they could control the building business under this charter, and make all the contractors and under this charter, and make all the contractors and builders in the city subject to them. I am astonished that these "enterprising, public-spirited citizens" stop at these few chartered privileges, when they should have included all other business in the city; and I presume they would have done so, if they had not been afraid of encroaching on the rights of the Main street men, and then they would have been deprived of the use of the numerous and influencial names they received on their petitions. We think these privileges should not be granted to any chartered company. Let the mechanics have a fair chance, and not crush them out by chartered monopchance, and not crush them out by chartered n

Ex-Speaker Banks.—It having been asserted in newspapers that Mr. Stone (of Lawrence, Stone, & Co.), in his testimony recently given before the committee to investigate the Middlesex Manufaccommittee to investigate the Middlesex Manufacturing Company's $87,000 transaction, has alleged that the firm loaned to ex-Speaker Banks $7,000 of the money in question, we have made inquiry into the facts, and have satisfied us that Mr. S. made no such statement. He alleged that Mr. Banks had borrowed $700 only, of the firm, more than two years ago, to pay off the bills of carpenters that had made some improvements on his house, for the repayment of which he (Mr. B.) had given ample security. However much we may differ from Mr. Banks politically, we see no good end to be attained either for the Democratic party cause or that of public morals, by circulating unfounded imputations on his personal integrity, such as this we thus explode.—Washington Star.

Strange as it may appear to persons unacquainted with the anomalous condition of everything in Mexico, it is stated as an undoubted fact that not only the General Government but also the State Governments make contracts with smugglers-often of the most disastrous nature to the country. For instance, with respect to dry goods that are subject nominally by the Mexican tariff, to a duty of 41/20 the "vara" (somewhat less than a yard), merchants have, by special contract, introduced such goods at a duty of a cent a yard! The larger the operator the lower the rate, generally, at which he can introduce goods. A merchant who can advance ten to twenty thousand dollars to the government in a tight place-particularly to the frontier authoritiescan "overpeer the petty traffickers" who have only a little to operate on.

Mr. Vanderbilt is about putting an opposition steam line on the route from New York to San Francisco, via the Isthmus. The steamships are the Northern Light, which is to sail from New York on the 9th of March, and the Orizaba, from San Francisco on the 5th of March. Mr. Vanderbilt has, for the past eighteen months, received from the Pacific Mail $40,000 per month, as long as no opposition was put upon the travel to and from California. This sum is worth the trial to retain it. Mr. Vanderbilt is just the man to make the effort. He announces that he will start on the 10th of March a line to meet the increased wants of that travel. This will make the third line to San Francisco.

WOMEN VOTING IN MASSACHUSETTS .- The petition of Sarah Wall and others to the Massachusetts Legislature for the right to vote was referred to a committee which had a hearing on Thursday last in the Hall of the House of Representatives, and were addressed in behalf of the petitioners by Samuel E. Sewall, Esq., of Boston, and by Wendell Phillips. One argument advanced by Mr. Sewall was that unrepresented classes had always and everywhere been represented classes had always and everywhere been oppressed.

Mr. Phillips said if woman was competent to be responsible to laws, it was a self-evident fact that she was competent to make them. She was not considered too delicate to send to the common jail, and the ballot-box ought to be as decent as a jail. If her domestic duties were such as to require her whole time in other affairs than those of politics, then the argument was good in the case of such men as Abbot Lawrence and Rufus Choate, engrossed as they were in the manufacturing business and the law. The advent of women into society was marked by The advent of women into society was marked by purity. Her advent into literature was marked by purity, and so would it be in politics.

The destitution, dependence, and crime of the sex were largely attributable to those Jaws which virtually excluded her from the various modes of livelihood pursued by men. Give her equal rights with man and a vast mass of festering corruption in man, and a vast mass of festering corruption in society would be taken gently away by the laws of trade. In Kentucky woman was allowed to vote on school questions. The barrier was thus broken away; the army of reform was rushing in, and the only question asked by Massachusetts was, how soon can we decently surrender? The age was tending to the reform, and the speaker was sure it would come soener or later. He hoped Massachusetts would have the honor of first shaking off this last

Snow Fleas .- The Mountain Messenger has made a discovery of fleas in the snows of California. It says:

While perambulating over the deep snows, lying on the mountains everywhere around us, we have often observed myriads of small insects covering the surface in almost every direction. Our curios-ity being excited, we have taken pains to examine them more minutely, and find them to be what we call, in the absence of any other name, snew fleas. They closely resemble the common flea, both as regards action and appearance, but are not half the size. While watching them we have seen them burrow beneath the snow to the depth of an inch with the greatest facility, and reappear with all the sprightliness of the backbiting tribe. So far as we have been able to learn, they derive their subsistence from the snow exclusively, never having observed them on any other substance. served them on any other substance.

Hogs.-The Chattanooga Advertiser, of the 28th ult., says:

The season for the transaction in live hogs has now closed, and the following statement will show the number packed here and the number shipped over the road as compared with last year:

Number slaughtered in 1857. Transported over the road 25,355 26,790

Showing an excess received at this point last year over this of 465 head. This deficiency was probably made up in excess of weight this over last year, and the amount for two seasons may be said to be about equal. The weather during the whole season has been very unfavorable for the safety of the products, particularly for those slaughtering south of this, and much of it is damaged. The quantity of bacon and bulk meat on hand here is much less at this time than at the same time last year.

The Thousandth Anniversary of the Russian Monarchy.—In the year 1862 the thousandth anniversary of the Russian monarchy is to be celebrated with great pomp and national manifestation in Russia. One grand feature in these solemnities is to be the inauguration of a monument commemorative of the inauguration of a monument commemorative of the day, but which has as yet to be designed, but for which subscriptions are being opened throughout the empire by order of the Government. The Emperor has only very lately decided finally that the said monument shall be erected at Novogorod, in the center of the Kremlin there, not far from the Sophia Cathedral. The destination where the said monument should be erected was for a long time dubious, inasmuch as the resolution had been adopted that its site should be the birthplace of the Russian Empire and polody knew exactly where that was. It its site should be the birthplace of the Kussian Empire, and nobody knew exactly where that was. It has been, however, assumed of late, that the earliest domicile of the Warager Princes was in the outskirts of Novogorod; but, as this would be rather an out-of-the-way place for a national monument, the Emperor has decided on its being erected in the very centre of the Novogorod Kremlin.

ADVENTURES OF A GENTLEMAN IN SEARCH OF A HORSE.—A book has passed through six editions in London entitled "the Adventures of a Gentleman in Search of a Horse, by Sir George Stephen." Every man that owns a horse or is about to pureb se one will be profited by the perusal of this book. It is an amusing as well as an instructive volume. The author is a lawyer, a gentlem's nof the old equestrian school, a true lover of the horse. On the start, he says, weary of his own weight (12 stone—168 lbs.), he sallied out early in January with fifty guineas in his pocket, bent on finding himself well mounced on a good hackney. On the 15th of March he was without a horse, minus far more than fifty guineas, except a right of action against a dealer on a warrantee. His first resource was to advertisements in the London papers, where cobs, hunters, and hacks were as plenty as blackberries in September. The difficulty was only where to choose. "The neatest little cob in London," "the best hack that ever was mounted," "that well known hunter, Tantivy, equal to 15 stone, up to any hounds," all offered themselves. "Away I went," he says, "to try them all and buy the best."

By way of digression Sir George says: "I ride rather more than 12 stone—never was afraid of a horse in my life—stand about 5 feet 9 inches, and still under middle age, I am of course far from indifferent whether I am well mounted." His first purchase was from a Quaker, price 30 guineas. The animal was a good horse, but the Quaker being two stone lighter and a quiet rider, a horse that would carry him safely would in less than a week break his own knees and endanger the neck of a heavy rider. This horse was sold without loss. His second purchase was a strong cob, "built like a castle," and on trial moved like a castle, and had no go in him, would kick and halt, and his wind was as thick as his carcase. Sold at a loss to a timid old gentleman.

The next purchase was a hunter, bought of a friend as a "charming goer, so docile that a lady ADVENTURES OF A GENTLEMAN IN SEARCH OF A gentleman.

The next purchase was a hunter, bought of a friend as a "charming goer, so docile that a lady might drive him with a pack tread," &c., &c. On trial, he had neither legs to carry him, nor wind to go. Sold to a butcher. Another charming brute attracted Sir George's fancy, but he unfortunately went to the stable in a new coat, new hat, new trowwent to the stable in a new coat, new hat, new trowsers, an eve-glass, and otherwise with the gloss of a tailor's shop about him. The seller extolled him as the "sweetest little pack horse that ever was crossed, the very thing wanted." On mounting him he danced a quadrille with every gentleman and lady he met, and Sir George soon found that he was better suited for Almack's than for him. The author states at the close of the volume that in twenty-two years he had upward of one hundred horses in his stables and had averaged a loss of but about three pounds on each. He says that, after so much experience, he never found a perfect horse. He was almost daily on horseback on the road, and in all this time he had never broken a limb or strained a almost daily on horseback on the road, and in all this time he had never broken a limb or strained a muscle for a horse's fault. In the purchase of his horses Sir George had to deal with all varieties of jockeys and gentlemen, and at last arrived to the settled conclusion that it is very inexpedient to buy a horse from a gentleman, and downright folly to do so if that gentleman is your friend. A gentleman will never sell a good horse if he can help it.

Of auctions (he means London auctions) our author writes:

"Auctions ought to have been put down at the same time with lotteries; at all events, three purchases should qualify a man for Bedlam, without the aid of a commission of lunacy. I never but once bought at an auction without being cheated, and that only happened because the interest sold was of a nature so complicated and unusual that not a man in the room comprehended its real value. * * * Whether at a horse sale, or any other, set it down as a maxim, that an auctioneer cannot do otherwise than lie. "Tis my vocation, Hal."

There are many useful lessons imparted in this volume on the good and bad points of a horse, how to manage and how to keep him; also, many hints on horsemanship, for the writer considers there should be good points in the rider as well as the horse. We will give a few extracts, taken promis-

"I believe there is not one man in a hundred who the behave there is not one man in a mutured was can acquire a good seat on horseback, if he has not been accustomed to the saddle from boyhood. The riding school may correct a few faults, but it will never make an adult pupil a perfect master of a horse. Sir Walter Scott justly remarks that there are few men under twenty who would not feel more achieved of an imputation against horsemapship. are few men under twenty who would not feel inde-ashamed of an imputation against horsemanship than their morality. It is a principle, almost an ax-iom in horsemanship, that the most fearless rider is the safest. I know of no instance in which it so truly applies, as in leaping or riding down hill. I have witnessed more of falls in hunting from checking a horse in his leaps, than from any other cause; and I believe for the same reason that he stumbles in descending a hill, when the bridle is tight in hand. I never had a fall, and yet I rode my horse as freely down hill as up it. So long as a horse goes freely he will go safely."

More than a third of the volume is devoted to horse warrantee cases decided in the English courts, and one hundred and seventy different suits are diand one hundred and seventy different suits are di-gested, and the points on which each case was de-cided are clearly given. Sir George says, next to buying a good horse, there are few things more dif-ficult than buying a good law; but the greatest pro-blem with which a plain man can puzzle his brains is to make law, whether good, bad, or indifferent, ntelligent to an every day reader. He adds:

is to make law, whether good, bad, or indifferent, ntelligent to an every day reader. He adds:

"I have spent more time on the chapter on guarantees than all the rest of the work, and though a lawyer by profession, and a jockey by taste, I confess that I entertain great doubts whether, even if I understand myself, I shall make myself intelligible to others. (This part of the work will be valuable to American lawyers). It may be doubted whether the buying or selling a horse is greater. The ethics of horse dealing are very peculiar. There is only one other case in which gentlemen appear by a sort of conventional understanding to be excused for leaving their honesty behind them. I have found to my cost that no man thinks the worse of a friend for stealing an umbrella on a rainy day, or palming eff an unsound horse upon a neighbor. This being so perfectly understood, I must assume that my reader, whatever may be his class, will cheat if he can; but it is my duty to inform him that he cannot so perfectly understood, I must assume that in reader, whatever may be his class, will cheat if he can; but it is my duty to inform him that he cannot go very far with impunity, and if he accepts the definition that I have given of unsoundness, namely, any infirmity or defect that incapacitates a horse for fair and reasonable exertion in the labor for which he is averagly nurchased he will readily necessive he is avowedly purchased, he will readily perceive that his power of cheating is circumscribed by very narrow limits."

THE TOOTHACHE.—"My dear friend," said H., I can cure your toothache in ten minutes."
"How? how?" inquired I. "Do it, in pity."
"Instantly," said he.

"Have you any alum?"

"Yes."

"Bring it and some common salt."

They were produced. My friend pulverized them in equal quantities, then wet a small piece of cotton, causing the mixed powder to adhere, and placed it in my hollow tooth.

"There," said he, "if that does not cure you I will forfeit my head. You may tell this to every one, and publish it everywhere; the remedy is infallible."

It was as he predicted. On the introduction of

It was as he predicted. On the introduction of the mixed alum and salt, I experience a sensation of coldness, which gradually subsided, and with it—the alum and salt—I cured the torment of the toothache.—Mandeville Reader.

Calhoun County.—The Senate of Alabama has passed, by a vote of 31 yeas, nays 0, a bill to change the name of Benton county to that of Calhoun—the bill for the purpose having been introduced by the Senator from Benton, Col. AFFAIRS AT FRANKFORT.

[Special Correspondence of the Evening Bulleting]
The Riot Act—Vote of Mr. Cosby No. 2— More Precincts in Louisville than you'll know what to do with—Governor's last Levee, &c.

FRANKFORT, Feb. 8, 10 P. M.

I telegraphed you this evening that the Bill authorizing the City Council of Louisville to pay the damages resulting to individuals from the destruction of property by mobs was laid on the table by a strict party vote. Such was the case, but I could not telegraph you a little episode which occurred. Mr. Cosby's name is the first on the Democratic side of the House, and when it was called the answer came clearly and distinctly, No! This was all very well, but after the balloting was over Senator Mallory stated that the vote of Mr. Cosby was recorded in favor of the bill, and, as he was not in the Senate in favor of the bill, and, as he was not in the Senate and had not been during the pendency of the ques-tion, he wished to know by what authority his name was recorded, and desired it erased. Mr. Andrews also said that if voting by proxy was allowed, he would break for home and leave a power of attorney in the hands of some friend in whom he had confidence, and he was proud to say there were several dence, and he was proud to say there were several such present.

Mr. Senator Walker, who was the individual who cast the vote for Mr. Cosby, made no public explanation, but I understand staid in his seat, sotto voce, that Mr. Cosby had requested him to cast his vote for him. Your correspondent has enjoyed the acquaintance of Senator Walker enly during the present session, but that acquaintance has been a very pleasant and agreeable one, and he would be the last person to attribute improper motives to him; yet, if the vote was cast ignorantly, at the request of Mr. Cosby, it was a piece of inexcusable ignorance, which could have been remedied by a session at the Normal School, which both gentlemen, I believe, voted to abolish, and if it was a piece of corruption it was worse than inexcusable, it was positively neit was worse than inexcusable, it was positively ne-farious. Taking either horn of the dilemma, the gentleman, for whom I have the highest respect per-sonally, and against whom I would make no charge, wes it to himself to explain the matter, which oubtless he can do satisfactorily.

Aside from this the only matter of interest trans-

Aside from this the only matter of interest transpiring was the passage by the House this evening of the bill creating twenty-seven voting precincts in the city of Louisville. It is somewhat surprising that the bill was introduced by Mr. De Haven, and not by any member from Louisville or Jefferson county, and a little more surprising that there was no petition or anything of the sort asking for any such a law at the hands of the Legislature. The bill, however, passed; every Democrat in the House voting for it, with the exception of Messrs. Newell and Kendall, who opposed it.

Nothing of interest is transpiring this evening except about our hotel; there are a multiplicity of white vests and immaculate kid gloves, all of which, white vests and immaculate kid gloves, all of which, I suppose, design exhibiting themselves to the Governor this evening on the occasion of his last levee for the season, and then pass away forever, for surely the wearers will take the advice of Dr. Holmes,

"Let the last party where they told their loves Bury in peace its dead boquets and gloves." ESTELLE.

HOW TOM CORWIN RID HIS SISTER OF AN OB-NOXIOUS LOVER. BY A WESTERN MAN,

Every one has heard of the eloquent, pathetic, and humorous stump orator of Ohio. He was pronounced by Mr. Clay (a most competent authority) to be the finest stump speaker he had ever heard; and in this opinion I most heartily coincide, after having heard Clay, Crittenden, Jones, of Tennessee, Polk, Benjamin, Soule, Randall Hunt, Tom Marshall, General Lamar, Bates, Douglas, and a host of others.

Well, this great orator carried his love of fun into every department of life. In the private circle, where he knew every person and unbosomed himself fully, he was the most delightful and genial conver-sationalist I ever listened to. I do not know that he now, as age and infirmity are creeping on, indulges his proclivity to humor so much as he used to do. But some twenty years ago he used to tell with great

But some twenty years ago ne used to ten with great gusto the following story:

"In early life—so early that I cannot remember the removal—my father 'pulled up stakes,' and, carrying with him the household goods, went from Bourbon county, Kentucky, where I was born, to Ohio. Notwithstanding a rough-and-tumble struggle with the world, he had a hard time to get on, proving to a supergreas and rapidly increasing family. owing to a numerous and rapidly-increasing family.
Well, family matters had not much improved when I had reached my thirteenth or fourteenth year.

"At this time there lived in the neighborhood a young man named Pickering. He had inherited a well-stocked farm, was good looking, and made strong profession of religion. This latter qualification caused him to find peculiar favor in the eyes of my father, who always was blinded by professions of extra viety.

"This fellow had a strong hankering after one of my sisters, who was a very pretty girl. To her he was peculiarly distasteful. She seemed always excessively annoyed at his presence. Yet he was ever at her side. She dared not dismiss him entirely, for fear of the paternal anger. Things went on in this way for a year or two, and, as I partook largely of my sister's hatred to him, I resolved to get rid of him in some way. I cast about for a plan for some time, but nothing occurred that gave me the slightest

"At last returning home late one summer night from the mill, I found the family at their nightly devotions. Passing by the window of the room in which they were assembled, I saw that Pickering was there, and pretty soon I discovered that he was nodding, and finally his head dropped. Now was my opportunity. I stole slyly into the hall, and reaching the hall door, which was slightly ajar, and close by which Pickering was, 'on bending knee,' I reached in and quickly pulling his chair from under him, he rolled heavily, as a sound sleeper would, upon the floor. The noise alarmed all. The old gentleman stopped in the midst of his almost interminable prayer, and saw the position of Pickering. All the family laughed outright; even my mother smiled.

"Pickering endeavored to pick himself up as rapidly as possible, but he had touched the old man upon his tenderest point. It was evident, from his rubbing his eyes, that he had slept under the old gentleman's ministrations, and had not my father a reputation far and wide for the fervency and traverthe of his ministrations and was not Pickering. ngth of his ministrations and was not Pickering his professing brother! It was too much. Slowly, yet most dignifiedly, did the old man approach him. Begone, hypocrite! he cried in thunder tones, 'never enter my house again.'

"Pickering was thunderstruck. He felt that he could make no apology which would not add to the insult. He had no suspicion of the exterior force which had aided him in his fall. He at once found his hat, took up his line of march, and, completely crestfallen, passed by me as I stood grinning in the shadow of the porch.
"At a suitable time I entered, got my supper, was told by a brother, in hurried whispers, what had happened, and then I stole off to bed, affecting ignorance and laughing most heartily, as I ensconced myself in the sheets, at the complete success of

CONSUMPTION.

Evan ville, ind., Nov. 17, '57. Dr. John Bull, Louisville, Ky.: Dear Sir: I have tried your Pectoral in a well-marked and severe case of pulmonary consumption, accompanie with severe hemorrhage from the lungs, in which Cod Li er Oil totally failed to produce any beneficial effect, and I was perfectly astonished at the immediate relief and dim-inution in the amount of expectoration which speedily followed its use. As a remedy in the advanced stages o consumption I give it most decidedly the preference. JOHN MAGENISS, M. D.

Sold by all druggists everywhere. All orders from wholesale purchasers or applications for Agencies must be addressed to DR. JOHN BULL, Louisville or New York.

We would respectfully call the attention of the public to a MARINE CHENNOMETER placed in our window, showing the exact time. It is entirely of American manufacture, and has been exhibited at the World's Fair in Paris in competition with the best London and French Chronometers, and also at the World's Fair in New York, and in every instance has received the highest premium for unequalled workmanship and correct time-keeping.

To our watch department we have secured the services of Mr. Ed. Helwig, of New York. Mr. H. can execute any kind of watch-work fully equal to Jurgensen, Frodsham, Adams, or any of the first London or Swiss makers.

In many fine Watches that are broken parts are substituted greatly inferior to the original, the customer paying the full price for a perfect piece of work. The Watch apparently performs well afterward for a while, but is more imperfect and less valuable than originally.

It is particularly recommended to those persons whose constitutions may have been impaired by the continuous use of ardent spirits, or other forms of dissipation. AFFAIRS IN WASHINGTON.

[Special Correspondence of the Louisville Journal.] The Kansas Question—Contested Elections—Humphrey Marshall—A Good Hu—The Territorial Questions,

WASHINGTON, reb. 3, 1898.

It seems to be reduced to a certainty that the Democratic majority in the Senate intend to link the Kansas with the Minnesota question—a slave with a free State—and thus attempt to pass the "fwin-sister" bill! This fact was avowed by Senator Jones, of Iowa, who said that he would not obey the anti-Lecompton instructions of the Legislature of that State; are would he resign. He wanted Kansas and Minnesota to come into the Union, hand in hand, together.

Whatever may be the proper policy in this branch of politics, it is a fact that Congress at the last session passed an act authorizing Minnesota to form a constitution and State government preparatory to be admission into the Union; but at that time no attempt was made to deal in like manner with Kansas. Minnesota has acted in good faith, and has her Senators and Representatives here ready to take their seats. To keep her out of the Union, or to make her admission contingent on the acceptance by Congress of the Lecompton Constitution, would be a manifest act of injustice to the new State of Minnesota.

alone—although its erection be specifically autho-rized—what is to become of Oregon. Her consti-tution for a State Government is in the hands of the Committee on Territories of the House. She, too, during the last Congress, was authorized to arrange the machinery for a State Government. Under the recently declared policy, she, too, must wait until some (at present unheard of) slave State shall be formed to take her by the hand and walk with her into the family of republics.

Every such question ought to stand on its own merits; so said Mr. Crittenden and other patriotic and unselfish statesmen.

Another thing: the Indiana contested election case has been postponed until after the Kansas quescase has been postponed until after the Kansas quescase has been postponed until after the Kansas quescase case has been postponed until after the Kansus ques-tion shall have been settled. By this means, the votes of Senators Bright and Fitch will be retained for the admission of Kansas under the Lecompton for the admission of Kansas under the Lecompton constitution; and by delaying to act on the Minnesota State admission bill, two Senators against the Lecompton constitution will be kept out of the chamber. Turning from the Senate, look at the House. The Minnesota Representatives, also opposed to that instrument, are to be held off, at least until the Kansas question shall have been decided. And, besides, the signs are unmistakable that Lewis D. Campbell, of Ohio, whose seat is contested by Col. Vallandingham, is to be ousted; and thus the Lecompton vote of the latter is to be substituted for the anti-Lecompton vote of the former. Den'tyou see the progress of the political Administration movement—to any nothing as to the right or wrong of the matter? During the debate on a resolution reported by the Committee of Elections against allowing Mr. Campbell further time to take supplementary testimony, Mr. Stephens, of Georgia, and others in the majority loudly and confidently declared that the design of Mr. Campbell was to delay action, and urged that the House should not longer delay to settle the matter. There was a necessity for it. Col. Marshall advocated an extension of time for good and sufficient

ter. There was a necessity for it. Col. Marshall advocated an extension of time for good and sufficient reasons, and took occasion to put in a heavy lick to this effect: That there could be no urgent cause for action immediately in this case, for the Senate, Democratic as it is, had delayed for two years to act upon the Indiana contested election case! To be consistent, the other wing of the party should not delay to settle that important question. But in the Senate two votes were to be retained for Lecompton; in the House a Lecompton vote is sought to be added by the exclusion of an opponent.

Much anxiety is expressed to know how Governor Wise, of Virginia, is going. Be perfectly assured he is now against the Lecompton movement, but may not at present publish the letter which it is said he has prepared to define his position. As "the Lecompton" is made a party test any man who opposes compton" is made a party test, any man who opposes it reads himself out of the party! This rule has been explicitly laid down. So "stand from under!"

The Ntcaragua Treaty.—We have our private advices from Nicaragua. They satisfy us of the entire untruthfulness of the stories written from this city alleging the probability of the rejection by that government of the Leisarri treaty. The cause of the delay in its ratification is the simple fact that the Legislature of Nicaragua not being in session it cannot be immediately ratified. The fact that the Legislature is very soon to meet is the only reason why President Martinez does not call a special session to that end. The approval of the treaty is unanimous throughout every branch of the Nicaraguan government.—Washington Star.

Fourth Volume of Debates of Congress THE ABRIDGEMET OF THE DEBATES OF CON-GRESS, or the Political History of the United States, from the original Documents. Edited by Col. Thomas H. Benton. In 15 large octave volumes of about 750 two-col-

Benton. In 15 large octave volumes of about 750 two-column pages.

This work has now reached the fourth volume, and is giving great satisfaction among all classes. It will contain the wi-dom of Congress for seventy years, and will be an invaluable part of the history of the country. It is of national interest, and one of the most valuable compendiums for public and private libraries ever issued. The work realizes a desideratum long felt, and of all others, for the political history of the Government, most wanted. Its wide range of characters, each one speaking for himself and representing his own party, and its far stretch of time, make it of the greatest value to the nation. The indexing is very complete, so that any name or subject desired may be found in either volume at once.

Terms.—The work is publishing exclusively by subscription, and the volumes are issued at intervals of from 2 to 3 months. In cloth binding at $23; law sheep $350; half morocco $4; half calfextra $450; each volume payable as delivered.
